-Training trailers are going out to the fair again. Mostly set with the instructor schedule, but we need firefighters to be demonstrators. We've been posting on social media but still need more. Please put the word out to your fire districts. Volunteers will get a free pass to get into the fair, plus an additional couple for family. Ordered banners for the fireman's building with QR codes that will take people right to the form to fill out to be a volunteer FF. The form goes to EC Fire Safety and then will be distributed to the appropriate fire department. -Still working on the study for the old tower. Even if it's fixable, the county may not fix it. There's still talk of moving training to another location and combining with EMS, law enforcement, etc. -Got the drawings back for the drager building for the increased pier size a couple of days ago. They were sent to DPW and we are waiting for a response. -Need to get the message to the fire departments that they're not always going to get BEFO/IFO classes at their departments. Their members may need to drive to a close by station for a class. We try to spread them out throughout the county. -Bootcamp 2 started this week. Going well so far, we've only lost a couple of students. People aren't showing up physically able to do the job.
-8 FF1's this year, which is in line with the previous yearProblem in Erie County seems to be more with retention, than recruitment. Need to dig into the whys. The Fire Safety office can help with retention by providing the education keep the firefighters engagedHazmat training/call volume going well. There were 3 lithium-ion battery emergencies i month of JulyBOCES BEFO class went well this year. Next year there's a full roster.
