U. S. G. A. Executive Meeting at Pine Valley

By WILLIAM HENRY BEERS

THE Spring meeting of the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association brought officials from all parts of the country to the Pine Valley Golf Club at Clementon, N. J. The roll call showed the greatest attendance of any Spring meeting. The only distant absentees were Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., and Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco, Cal. Mr. Jones had expected to be present, but was detained by business after having completed arrangements to attend. Mr. Lapham came to New York with the intention of attending the meeting, but was compelled to return to the Coast.

The business meetings were held at night and while referred to by those attending as "just routine," they were busy affairs as each of the twelve sub-committees of the U. S. G. A. had submitted committee reports with recommendations that had to be acted upon and decisions rendered during the meeting. Among the most important committee reports was that of the Membership and Reinstatement Committee of which Prescott S. Bush is chairman. This Committee presented applications for twenty-he Country Club of Buffalo has been an important part of the history of Buffalo, and its members have provided civic and business leadership throughout the community. The present location of the Country Club of Buffalo is actually its third. The Club was incorporated on February 11, 1889, and its first clubhouse, designed by E. B. Green, was opened in August of that year. Three of the founders of the Country Club were among the founders of the Buffalo Polo Club in 1878. Polo continued to be played on the Club grounds until 1935.

In 1894, Club members placed an empty tomato can in the ground, and thus was born the first golf hole in Western New York. The Club moved from its city location at Elmwood and Nottingham in 1899 to make way for the lavish Pan American Exposition. During this time, the clubhouse became the Women's Building and the center for all women's activities. The Club acquired land on the city line at Main and Bailey in 1900 and had the new course ready for play in 1902, with a new clubhouse designed by George Cary. During 1910 and 1911, Walter J. Travis revamped the course in anticipation of attracting a major tournament, which turned out to be the 1912 U.S. Open.

Acquisition of property in Williamsville began in 1922, and the Donald Ross designed course opened in 1926. The clubhouse, designed by Duane Lyman, opened in 1927. The United States Women's Amateur Championship was played on the new course in 1931, and the Curtis Cup was contested in 1950, with the American women defeating the British. The Carling Cup Matches between pro-amateur teams from the U.S. and Canada were held in 1960, and in 1962, the National Junior Girls Championship was played at the Country Club of Buffalo.

THE OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP

J. J. McDERMOTT AGAIN THE WINNER. NOTABLE
SHOWING OF THE HOMEBREDS

BY THE EDITOR.

The eighteenth annual national Open championship of the U. S. Golf Association was played at the Buffalo Country Club on August 1st and 2d. There were no less than 128 starters, by far the greatest number on record, necessitating a start at 6.30 A. M.

At the end of the first round the leaders were M. J. Brady (Wollaston), Dan Kenney (Lake Rosseau, Canada) and George Sargent (Chevy Chase), each with a 72; Frank Peebles (Stockbridge) and Mr. Walter J. Travis (Garden City), 73, while those on the 74 mark were Tom McNamara (Boston), Jack Campbell (Old York Road), J. J. McDermott, (the title holder), Percy F. Barrett (Lambton), Aleck ("Nipper") Campbell (Brookline), Jack Croke (Westward Ho!), George Alves (French Lick) and Dave Ogilvie (Augusta).

The end of the day's play found a triple tie for first place, at 147, between P. F. Barrett, M. J. Brady and Aleck Smith, the latter having supplemented his morning's score, of 77, with a very fine 70, made up as follows:

Out—5 3 4 4 4 4 4 3—35

In —5 4 4 3 3 4 3 5 4—35—70

There was also a triple tie for second place, at 149, between Jack Campbell, McDermott and Peebles.

Tom McNamara had dropped to seventh place, owing to an 8 on the fifth hole, shortly followed by a 6 at the eighth. His score was 41-39—80.

J. M. Barnes, of Tacoma, who had been scoring very low in practice rounds and who was looked upon by many of the local players as being certain to figure prominently, if indeed not win, did not perform up to expectations, returning a 77. This was, however, atoned for in a measure by a 73, giving him a total of 150, similar figures being registered by George

Sargent, 6s at the third, fifth and eighth holes being responsible for his second round of 78.

Jack Croke with 81, Dan Kenney with 83, Alves with 82, and Ogilvie with 83, spoiled their chances.

Tom Vardon could do no better than 78-79—157, a similar score to Robert Andrew's.

Gilbert Nicholls (Wilmington) put himself out of the running with 84-77—161.

Of the amateurs, next to Mr. Travis with 73-79—152, came Mr. W. H. Gardner, 2d, a local player of nineteen only, who offers excellent promise, with 78-80—158; Mr. J. G. Anderson (Brae Burn), 80-79—159; Mr. H. B. Lee (Detroit), runner-up in this year's Michigan State championship, after twice holding the title; Mr. J. K. Bole (Cleveland), 84-81—165; Mr. J. M. Rhett (Dyker Meadow), 78-88—166; Mr. I. S. Robeson (Oak Hill), 87-79—166; Mr. Percy Platt, amateur champion of Greater New York, 84-83—167; Mr. T. M. Sherman (Yahundasis), 86-82—168; Mr. Jack Blossom (Cleveland), 86-83—169; Mr. Parke Wright (Buffalo), 84-87—171, and Mr. R. C. Watson (Westbrook), the genial Secretary of the U. S. G. A., with 93-81—174.

James Alves, Oarwood.
Mr. A. B. Rhett, Crescent.
R. G. Macdonald, Hyde Park.
Mr. George Wadsworth, Buffalo Park.

On the third round the leaders were:

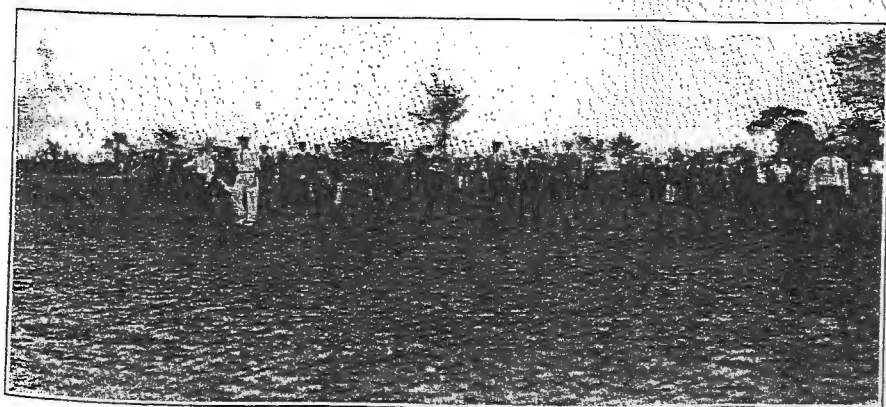

Brady	72	75	73—220
McDermott	74	75	74—223
Smith	77	70	77—224
Sargent	72	78	76—226
MacNamara	74	80	73—227

McDermott started off by pulling his first two shots out of bounds, recording a 6, and another pulled tee shot on the second was anything but encouraging. Thereafter he settled down and played superbly. Out in 40, his 34 in gave him a 74, three strokes behind Brady, the leader. Through weak putting Aleck Smith dropped strokes on each the third, seventh, tenth and eighteenth greens, running his score up to 77. McNamara, with a fine 73, recovered some of the ground he had lost in the preceding round—that unfortunate 80. Sargent's 76 was marred by a 7 on the seventeenth.

The following withdrew at the end of the third round:

H. Lagerblade, Youngstown. 162
G. L. Boden, Tedesco. 164
Aleck Taylor, Losantiville. 163

THE FINAL ROUND.

With a comfortable lead of three strokes Brady completely threw away his chances of winning his first championship on the first three holes—par 4s—with 5, 6, 5. Strokes were dropped also on the tenth and seventeenth, running his total up to 79, or a grand total of 299.

A gallant effort was made by Tom MacNamara on his last round. Paired with Aleck Smith he continued to reel off hole after hole in absolutely perfect golf, without the semblance of a mistake. The par of the course is 37-37-74. Yet MacNamara beat this by no less than five strokes, with a 35-34-69, incidentally establishing a new record for the course, and giving him a grand total of 296, three strokes under that of Aleck Smith.

Good as this was, it was not quite good enough, as it proved, for McDermott, who was three or four holes behind MacNamara, was playing almost as brilliantly. Out in 35, the same as the Metropolitan Open champion, he had wiped out Brady's lead of three strokes and at the turn led him by a similar margin. Never faltering, he kept up the same pace on the incoming journey, the only blot on otherwise faultless play being a pulled approach at the home hole, which cost him a stroke. As it was he registered a 71, which gave him a grand total of 294, two strokes less than MacNamara, and the championship title for the second time in succession.

Aleck Smith and M. J. Brady were tied for third place, at 299.

It is worthy of record that of the players "in the money"—the first ten—no less than seven learned their game in this country.

About the Championship. The 1912 Open was the first in which the field (numbering 128) had difficulty finishing two rounds before the end of daylight the first day. Darkness descended as the last pair completed their second round, leaving Mike Brady (72-75), Percy Barrett (74-73) and Alex Smith (77-70) tied for the lead at 147. Two behind them was another trio, led by defending champion John McDermott.

The weather turned ugly on the second day, with intermittent thunderstorms and two heavy downpours nearly halting play. Smith's play was as sloppy as the weather, and his morning round of 77 booted him from contention. McDermott hit two drives out-of-bounds in succession at the first hole but still managed a 6. The Rule regarding out-of-bounds was then only loss of distance. The brash McDermott held together, playing the last 16 holes of the round in three-under-par, finishing with 74. Mike Brady led the field after a morning round of 73 and a total of 220.

Brady threw away his hopes for the championship by playing the first three holes of the final round in four-over-par (5-6-5), eventually finishing with 79 (299). Tom McNamara, who trailed Brady by seven strokes entering the final round, shot 35-34—69, establishing records for the course (69) and the lowest final 36 holes in the Open (142). His total score of 296 looked good, but McDermott, playing three holes behind McNamara, was on his best form. He matched McNamara's 35 going out, and had a two-shot lead when he birdied the 16th hole. Despite a bogey at the last hole, McDermott was able to card a 71, 294, good for his second Open championship. He had not yet turned 21-years-old.

1912 Notes. In the first quarter century of the Open it was possible to enter the field up until the day of the championship. Prior to 1912, no more than 90 players entered. In 1912, however, 128 players turned out and that proved too many. The Buffalo Express reported that Gilbert Nicholls, off at 6:30 the first morning, "was forced to get away incompletely dressed, with half a breakfast and a substitute caddie that broke his heart." The following year, the USGA responded to the problems by requiring qualifying rounds, thereby making it more difficult to compete in the championship.

The scoring term "par" was put into effect in 1911. The USGA defined it as "perfect play without flukes and under ordinary weather conditions, always allowing for two strokes on each putting green." Under that definition, CC of Buffalo played to a par of 74, or 296 for four rounds. Officially, then, John McDermott, at 294, was the first player to shoot under par for 72 holes in the Open.

The 10th hole at CC of Buffalo measured 606 yards, the longest in Open history at the time. It was assigned a par of six, the only time in the Open a hole has played to a par of more than five.

EYES OF THE GOLF WORLD ON BUFFALO

Buffalo Courier HEADLINE, JULY 29, 1912

By Ronald S. Montesano

Rare photo of the rear of the Country Club of Buffalo's George Cary clubhouse, decked out with awnings, as it was for the 1912 US Men's Open Championship. COURTESY OF BILL KOCH

Buffalo received the focus of all eyes in the world of golf when, for two days in the month of August, 1912, it set forth a challenge for the major exponents of the sport. The entire Western New York golfing community was abuzz with the onset of one of the sport's most important championships, to be held at the region's most revered club. Professional and amateur competitors from across the globe made their way to the jewel of the great lakes, the Queen City, to contest the USGA Men's Open Championship. What did it take to bring such an esteemed championship to Buffalo? What of the club itself? And the course, what of its subsequent history?

The Country Club of Buffalo was incorporated in 1889 on the Bronson Rumsey farm at the corner of Elmwood and Nottingham (across from the present-day Buffalo and Erie County Historical Society), at the time considered to be the outskirts of the city. The initial six holes of golf in Buffalo were built in 1894, the subsequent expansion of the course was the result of the combined efforts of Charles Blair Macdonald (world-renowned competitor and course architect) and club member George Hibbard. The original course varied during its short tenure on the site. Fate intervened as the century turned and in 1899 the land was secured by the organizers of the 1901 Pan-American Exposition. The golfing gentry was forced to look elsewhere for grounds. In 1900, several members of the Country Club of Buffalo purchased seventy acres of land at Main Street and Bailey Avenue. In 1901, Ganson Depew, "the grand old man of Buffalo Golf" laid out the first nine holes at the new site. An additional sixty acres along Bailey Avenue were acquired in 1904, and a second nine was opened in 1905. With an entire 18 holes in play, the membership of the club began its attempt in 1910 to secure the national Open Championship. What was essentially a quality amateur design was shored up by the professional input of Walter J. Travis, amateur golf competitor and Renaissance man of American golf. His suggestions for improving the course brought it to a standard suitable for a national competition. Let it suffice to say of this major figure that every imaginable aspect of American golf that bore his signature was similarly mirrored in the trace that he left on the Country Club of Buffalo's course. Mr. Ganson Depew, chairman of the Golf Committee, and Mr. D.H. Findley, the club professional, oversaw work on the bunkers, hazards, and green sites, and the 1912 tournament was awarded to the club. Travis also competed in the event, finishing in a very commendable tie for tenth place. This placement earned him the status of low amateur for the tournament.

It is ironic that the finest player-to-be to walk the Buffalo course was not entered in the tournament proper. A 19 year-old assistant professional from the Country Club of Rochester accompanied his employer, a contestant, to the championship. While Andrew Christy did not feel that his charge was ready for such heady competition, he did allow the youngster to play a practice round over the course. The young man returned a medal score of 73, and would go on to finish 4th in the following year's celebrated playing of the Open Championship at The Country Club in Brookline, MA. Thus were the footprints of Walter Hagen first imprinted on the history of golf in Buffalo.

The terms "par" and "bogey," long held to represent perfection and near-misses on individual golf holes, took on a new meaning in 1912. In that year, "par" replaced "bogey" as the standard for excellence, relegating the latter to its place of infamy among tournament golfers. "Par" for the course was set at 74 strokes for the championship, with four par three holes, nine par fours, four par fives and, most unique, a par six. In fact, the only hole to ever be designated a par six in USGA Open history was number ten at the Country Club of Buffalo. Measuring 606 yards, and running much of the course's boundary along Bailey Avenue, the hole provided a bit of drama, as the champion played it in 18 strokes over four rounds, while the runner-up completed it in 21. The three-stroke differential between McDermott and MacNamara on that hole was one shot greater than the two-stroke margin of victory enjoyed by McDermott.

No pre-tournament favorite was identified, as many skilled players were entered in the championship field. The defending champion, John McDermott, was present, along with "Long" Jim Varnes, Alex Smith, Aleck Campbell, Fred McLeod, and Jock Hutchinson, accompanied by the redoubtable amateur, Walter Travis, and local favorite W.H. Gardner (all of 19 years of age!) from the host club. The championship for three rounds was in the hands of Mike Brady, of Wollaston, MA, whose score of two-under par 220 held a three-stroke advantage over the defending champion. Seven strokes in arrears was Tom MacNamara of Boston, who would undertake a charge that, in the end, would nearly sweep the top prize away from the leaders. Brady began to derail on the first four holes of the final round, playing them in four strokes above par. Over the same stretch, McDermott's even-par total gained four shots, assuming for him the mantle of leader. MacNamara would play the front nine in two-under par 35 for the third time that week, vaulting him over a handful of players into contention. In fact, he was the only contestant to post 35 more than twice, and only John Dowling, of Scarsdale Golf Club, would post a lower nine-hole score (34) that week. By round's end, MacNamara would be the only competitor to break 70 for the week, establishing a new course record of 69, five shots beneath par. His effort elevated him above all others save one, John McDermott, the defending champion. McDermott played steady golf that afternoon, posting the third lowest total for 18 holes. A 72nd hole bogey reduced his margin of victory to two strokes, and he became the second golfer to date to defend this prestigious championship, and the first to break "par" or its equivalent for 72 holes. Buffalo would prove to be McDermott's last great victory.

By the year 1926, this golf course had been transferred to the city of Buffalo, which renamed it Grover Cleveland Park. Changes to the layout, perhaps those suggested by Donald Ross, had been implemented by the Buffalo Country Club by 1918, as the course now played to a par of 71, "along more modern lines," according to one club historian. The most apparent alteration occurred in the "Eggert Road" wing of the course, where the two inner par fours (3 and 4) were eliminated, and a solitary par three running along the road, was added. A second area of congestion, where the first, third and seventeenth greens sat in close proximity, was cleared out. It is evident that, from a 1912 the western border of the Polo field became the inner causeway. The spacious piece of land once trampled by horses and polo players was annexed for golf, and two new holes (16 and 17) were created. Unfortunately, the portion of the course that contained the old 17th a long par five, was redesigned into a par four (new 16) and an interesting par three (new 17). In the process, an enormous cross bunker, reminiscent of the "Hell Bunker" of the Old Course at St. Andrews, was incorporated into the design of the new 17th. In 1926, the reborn Grover Cleveland Park course served as host to another USGA championship, the Men's Public Links, won by future University of Minnesota golf coach Lester Bolstad, at 7 and 8 (originally 8 and 9), were erased along with a significant portion of the fabled 10th. A shorter par three ran parallel to number six, then the long walk to old ten (new 8). Number eleven (formerly 12) lost some thirty yards of acreage when the entry road was moved to the course perimeter. The former Polo Field terrain, in the middle of the course, was altered yet again for holes 15 (a new and short par four) and 16 (originally a long par three, most recently returned to par four status in the 1990s).

The 18th playing of the United States Golf Association's Open championship, in Buffalo, in 1912, would be memorable for a number of reasons. It represented the final occasion on which the event was contested over two days, with 36 holes of medal play each day. A record entry total of 128 necessitated a quite-early 6:30 a.m. start on the first day. The following year, 1913, would see a shift in round configuration, with 18-hole rounds on Thursday and Friday, and 36 holes on the final, memorable Saturday, as well as the institution of on-site qualifying, a further means of reducing the field of play. Far from the lucrative enterprise that professional golf is today, only ten players received prize money in 1912, with the grand sum of $300 award to the winner. On an informal note, the unofficial rivalry between "homebreds," competitors born in the USA, and those from "over home," from the soil of Great Britain, increased markedly. It would reach its pinnacle the following year near Boston, when 19 year old homebred amateur Francis Ouimet would quiet the golfing world by defeating Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, from over home, for the title.

The Country Club of Buffalo would call the Main-Bailey property home until 1926, when its new Williamsville layout, designed by Donald Ross, was opened. Although its high-profile tenant moved out, the golf course persevered, reinventing itself not once, but twice.

Although the Amateur Public Links Championship is not so revered a competition as the Open, it nonetheless offered a second opportunity to showcase the course. Even the encroachment of the much-needed hospital was unable to completely spoil the flavor of

A mixture of the glory that once was and the present that is, this tract of land that once supported the footsteps of the finest golfers of an era now serves as the first course of many new players, and the home course of a dedicated Buffalo Golf Club. Although the original incarnation has passed on, much more (and perhaps greater) history is still to be made at the corner of Main and Bailey.

My gratitude for assistance conveyed is extended to the following selfless individuals: to two extraordinary gentlemen, Mr. Albert J. Wright III, historian and member of the Country Club of Buffalo, and Mr. Edward Homsey, Archivist-treasurer of the Walter J. Travis society; to Ms. Patty Moran, librarian at the United States Golf Association Golf House, in Far Hills, New Jersey, for providing a 1922 Country Club scorecard that identified the heretofore-uncharted renovations, as well as additional information on the playing of the 1912 United States Open Championship, including articles from The American Golfer and The New York Times; and finally, to Elizabeth and Ronald Montesano, for looking the other way so many years ago, as I escaped up Cornell Avenue and under the fence, to fritter away countless hours on the hallowed and magical ground that lies at the confluence of Eggert Road, Main Street, and Bailey Avenue.

Championship Golf in Buffalo.

During Thursday and Friday of the week to come the eyes of all golfers—eyes as innumerable as those in a barrel of old potatoes—will be centered full upon Buffalo. Over the altered championship golf course of the Country Club the golf tournament, involving the open championship of the United States, will be played on those two days, August 1st and 2d.

In obtaining the national open championship tournament, the Country Club of Buffalo is to be heartily congratulated; as is every golfer in this portion of the state. The opportunity will be given them, one perhaps in a lifetime, of witnessing the very pick of the amateurs and professional golfers of the country in their ideal form; in championship competition.

Early in the week many of the golfers entered are expected in the city in order to play over and familiarize themselves with the links at the Country Club, to learn the lay of the ground and the location of the bunkers, previous to the start of the first competitive round, on Thursday morning. Several well-known professionals recently playing over the club's links for a like purpose expressed themselves as very much pleased with the links as changed and altered, regarding the course as a championship one, requiring the best test of golf.

Two years ago the Country Club began improving its golf course. A large amount of money was spent in trapping and bunkering it in the most approved style. In order that the course be made as perfect and as difficult as possible, the golf committee of the club invited many players of note and best authorities of the game, to play on the links and advise the committee as to the placing of new traps. Now the Country Club of Buffalo has one of the most difficult golf courses in the States. Since last year the course has been strengthened quite a little in addition to other improvements. Many of the tees and greens will be thrown open for the first time on Thursday morning, upon the start of play in the national open proachable condition of the club's links.

The United States Golf Association will have entire charge of the tournament. The club will turn over the links and accessories to the association for the week of July 28th. The tournament will last for two days, there being 72 holes of medal play. On the first day, Thursday, August 1st, each player will play 36 holes; eighteen in the morning, beginning at 9 o'clock; a like number in the afternoon. As provided by the ruling, all whose scores for 36 holes are within fifteen strokes of the low score, qualify for the second day's play.

On Friday, the second day, two rounds are also played. The golfer having the low score for the 72 holes, the total of two days' play, wins the title of open champion of the United States and the accompanying purse of $300. If the winner of the tournament be a professional, this prize is one of money; be he an amateur, he will get the equivalent in plate. There are nine other prizes for the next best men, graduating to $10, given by the United States Golf Association.

The entries for the national open golf championship tournament closed on Thursday of last week. Secretary Robert S. Watson of the United States Golf Association announced close to 100 of the country's best amateur and professional golfers among them. Up to the time when this page went to press, it was not known whether any of the local amateurs had entered the tournament or not; none had signified their intention of so doing to the golf committee of the Country Club. Two of the Buffalo professionals, however, entered, Findlay and Harland.

Of the six scratch amateur golfers of the country, the Buffalo tournament expects Chick Evans, Walter J. Travis, Jerome Travers, Fred Herreshoff; and of those rated with a handicap of one by the national association, W. C. Fownes, George Ormiston, Paul Hunter and others are coming. The professionals are many and the finest of the nation's golfers.

A PROFESSIONAL FROM THE PACIFIC COAST

Charles Evans, Jr., is perhaps the most popular of the youthful golfers and is rated as a scratch amateur. Chick, as he is nicknamed, a week ago Saturday, won for the second time the Western amateur championship at Denver, defeating Warren Wood, one up. His first win of that title was in 1909. Perhaps Evans's best effort, however, was that of 1910, when he won the open Western honors at Chicago, in which the professionals were also entered. In competing in the English championship last year he was not put out until the fourth round. Of a sterling character, Evans is one of the most popular players in the country.

Walter J. Travis is well known to almost any golfer. Twice he has won the national amateur championship of the United States, and in 1904 was winner of the British championship. Playing in the best of form this year, Walter Travis has won several important matches in the South and East. In January he covered the Palm Beach course in the wonderful scores for three rounds of 62, 63 and 65.

Jerome S. Travers, likewise, has won the national amateur championship two times. For a year or two past he has not been playing in competition, on account of ill health. He is known as one of the best in the country's younger era, rated in the first flight. This back in competition, Jerome Travers is playing better than ever. He won the metropolitan championship and the New Jersey title. The year he captured for the fourth time entries included the best golfers of the United States; and the title was year contested at the Baltusrol Country Club, Travers making the final score of 74 par for that course.

Fred Herreshoff was last year runner-up in the national amateur championship, competing again English player, H. H. Hilton, 1910 holder of the title. While Herreshoff has won the amateur championship tourney, he has been in the final last year he played wonderfully against Mr. Hilton, when after a number of holes down he succeeded in par golf in creeping up on the Englishman, losing the championship on the 37th hole.

W. C. Fownes of Pittsburgh is an amateur-championship three years at Brookline playing in the against Evans. He is recognized one of the best of the amateurs in the country today.

Paul Hunter is a Western golfer, both hailing from Chicago, is rated among the first-flight as A1. He has won many tournaments in the West.

George Ormiston, also of P is rated by the National Association as the first flight of amateurs, of considerable experience, he many creditable matches.

Immediately following the playing the national open championship tournament, the fifth annual amateur championship of the Country Club of Buffalo will be contested. Beginning on following day, Saturday, August play will last three days; being resumed on Monday, the finals to be reached on Tuesday, August 6th. There is no doubt that all of the well-known amateurs will also take part in event, attracted here by the open championship and remaining over for Country Club's tourney. Owing to class of players, this event will be national import. Buffalo is certain for five days of golf thrill.

The fifth annual amateur tournament of the Buffalo Country Club is open to any amateur in the country. Entry for the event must be in the hands of Chairman Ganson Depew, chairman of the golf committee, No. 963 Elliott Sq by 4 p.m. on Wednesday of this July 31st.

championship. The accompanying map of the grounds of the Country Club of Buffalo, specially drawn for The Illustrated Express, shows in every minor detail the new championship course.

In its present condition, the course at the Country Club is exceedingly fast, on account of the long drought. The rubber-core ball runs an abnormal distance, and bounds phenomenally. The course, however, has not suffered worse than other courses of the East which, unfortunately, have clay soils. West, corresponding rainy weather has reversed the condition of the golf links. The fair and putting greens at the Country Club suffered very severely on account of the long, hard winter. While they are in fair condition, they are not as playable as in former years. At one time, so severe was the damage caused by the last winter, it was thought that the championship tournament could not be held here. By constant attention and hard work, however, the turf has been brought into a fairly playable shape.

The list of entries, with pairings, for the open golf championship of the United States tournament, to be played over the course of the Country Club of Buffalo on Thursday and Friday, August 1st-2d, of this week, has been made public. The list includes 116 amateurs and professional of country-wide fame, breaking all previous entry records for any tournament ever held under the auspices of the United States Golf Association.

Owing to the overwhelming number of entries, the play will start at 8 a. m. sharp on Thursday, August 1st, instead of 9 a. m., as previously announced. The time of the start of each pair in the first round of medal play on Thursday is also given in The Express table, with club represented by each amateur or professional.

met with his hearty approval as being the best manner in which to welcome back the athlete while the enthusiasm aroused over his exploits abroad was still in the flood. His honor declared that at this meet he would formally greet Reidpath in the name of the city. "Give him the keys, so to speak," smiled Mr. Fuhrmann.

The programme arranged for the sports is one of excellent promises, and there is no doubt that every athlete in training will make his appearance in the lists. The fact that Allie Krushel, the Buffalo member of the Olympic bicycle team, will also be started in a match race, has won widespread approval for it is generally appreciated that Krushel did remarkably well in finishing thirteenth in the field of almost 200 of the world's famous bicycle riders.

Fred Vokes, who has taken charge of the collection of entries for the meet, with headquarters at room No. 61, the Iroquois Hotel, declared yesterday that the response he has received to date in the distribution of entry blanks indicates that a great concourse of athletes will assemble at the ball park on the eighth to do honor in competition to their illustrious townsman.

Syracuse will be invited to send leading representatives and the university will be strongly represented in the matter of athletic talent and otherwise.

Richard H. Templeton of the Buffalo Syracuse University Club has received a very interesting letter from Tom Keane, the athletic coach at Syracuse University, in which Keane sets forth in detail the many exploits of Reidpath while the Buffalo boy was a student at the university.

For a certain sum, the winner of the first prize, the emigration agent, resident in Calcutta, who drew up an order of $40,000 for a half ticket, the first prize, amounting to $100,000, was altogether $110,000, where the worthless master of who drew the ticket, the horse in question, disposed of a half ticket to a syndicate for $5,000, he to $10,000, so that, after hand a half share, less the purchase of the ticket, he received $1,000 for an out-let, his having purchased three tickets, the first prize in the year was won in 1910 on an outlay of $5 by Captain H. T. Babes of the P. When the captain heard that a Londoner had sold his ticket retaining his right to the other prize, which was worth $50,000, he, lucky subscriber, who drew Edward's horse, Minoru, in 1908, a share in his ticket for the sum of $5,000. Had he retained the ticket, he would of course have done better, but as it was he received $10,000, enough to enable him to try for the remainder of his days.

Syndicates who buy up the tickets, of lucky drawers find a profitable one is evident from it on last year's derby it is estimated made a profit of $170,000, for there are many subscribers who, by drawing one of the favorites, think to make sure of $25,000 or $30,000 from a syndicate rather than chance of their horse being beaten for a much less sum.

or in which the draw is conducted simple and scrupulously fair. It is a Saturday preceding the Wednesday the race is run. The numbers of tickets sold are placed in one reel, while in another are placed of all the horses originally nominated for the race. Then a blind-draws a number from one barrel blindfolded boy the name of a horse. After each draw the number is shaken up, giving all the numbers a shake-up. These people drawing are immediately notified by letter to what part of the world have gone.

on the greens we carry two putters, one for fast and one for slow work. By this I contend that we are assuming the minimum of brain work, and are relying too much on artificial aid.

What need is there for a man to carry two putters? A player, that is a player in the true sense of the word, and by this I do not mean that a man has to be scratch before he is a player, should make one putter do for all kinds of greens. He knows, or should know if the green is fast or slow by simply looking at it, and should hit his ball accordingly. What is the prime fault of all golfers whether they be champions or only ordinary men? Nothing more or less than not thinking of what they are doing. At the psychological moment of hitting the ball we are thinking of something else. Our swing may be good, and our heads held firm with eyes glued on the ball, but our thoughts are elsewhere. We may be thinking of golf, probably thinking of the actual shot we are playing, but not in a way to insure success.

I wonder how many people deliberately make themselves miss the ball by allowing themselves to think that the shot will be missed. How many golfers say after a shot has been played, and missed that they felt they were going to miss it. They have it fixed in their mind that they are going to fizzle, and fizzle they do. Scores of thoughts occur to one in the few seconds required to hit the ball. A man is walking by the side of the course, and we immediately think we shall pull and hit him. We do, or at least if we do not hit him we shout out "Fore!" as our ball passes by his ear. A tree grows just on the edge of the green, well out of the line of play; as we approach we feel sure we are going into it; we do. Incidents like these are common.

When we are playing golf everything seems to be magnified a thousand fold just to catch our eye and thoughts. Hedges, ponds, bunkers, anything, we think of them, think of going into them, and then because the hands answer the brain as nature intends that we should, we get angry. No amount of, or no matter how good, a swing will make up for wandering thoughts. When a shot has to be played whether it be a full drive or a foot putt, the whole mental energies should be concentrated upon the one fact of hitting the ball. During the preliminary waggle of the drive, of the careful glance along the line of a difficult putt, there should be ample time to make up one's mind as to the kind of shot required. If the shot be an approach, the exact spot upon which to pitch should be picked out and focussed upon the brain. Then when the club goes back think of nothing but hitting the ball. You will unconsciously play in the direction of the spot you have picked out. Look at the ball and say to it, "I am going to hit you hard." Just look as if you were expecting something to happen, that something being the club hitting the ball. Try to make yourself see the two meet, and when you can do this every time you have not much else to be concerned about.

The laws for good golf are surprisingly few, but that they are hard I will admit. Swing cannot be everything, or why should we see bad swings doing what good swings fail at. The next time you are on the links look around and see what I mean. There is in every club some person who outrages the old-down laws of how shots should be played. His swing is all wrong, yet he plays good golf. Why is it? Simply because he concentrates his attention on what he is doing, and does not allow his thoughts to wander. Concentration and will power are the two great things that help in golf. Concentrate your attention on how you want to hit the ball, and have will power enough to make yourself hit it in that way. You will not make many mistakes. Try it!

Bay State's Handicap Changes.

The most important of the changes in the handicap rating of the Massachusetts Golf Association is that which puts Francis Oulmet in the honor list with J. G. Anderson and P. W. Whittemore at 2. The list is based on the U.S.G.A. system, and the lowest rating in Massachusetts is 2. Two players are added to the list rated at 3—Heinrich Schmidt of Worcester, the new-state champion, and R. R. Gorton. Seven players are now rated at 3. H. W. Stucklen and G. V. Roian have been dropped from a rating of 3 to one of 4, and S. K. Sterne is raised from 5 to 4. The complete list of handicaps from 2 to 4, inclusive, is as follows:

At 2, J. G. Anderson, F. Oulmet, P. W. Whittemore, at 3, R. W. Brown, W. C. Chick, P. Gilbert, R. R. Gorton, H. Schmidt, W. R. Tuckerman, H. H. Wilder. At 4, A. G. Lockwood, F. A. Martin, G. V. Roian, S. K. Sterne, H. W. Stucklen.

To save her little boy from the alleged drunken fury of his father last night Mrs. McNamara, 23 years old, who lives up the Oak street, stabbed the man over the heart with a scissors. He is in the Emergency Hospital and may not live. The woman is detained at police headquarters on an open charge.

John McNamara, the woman's husband, is business agent for the stationary firemen's union. He is about 40 years old. Mrs. McNamara said she had him arrested two weeks ago because he failed to provide for her and their child.

Last night, she says in her statement to Chief Regan, he came home drunk at 10:30 o'clock and beat the child, a boy eight years old. The woman said she was getting something for her husband to eat when he attacked the boy again and knocked him down.

The child ran crying to his mother and hid behind her skirt, and the father tried to get at him. McNamara is a big man, more than six feet tall and powerfully built. His wife is frail and has been ill for some months.

She told the police that she tried her best to coax her husband not to strike the little boy, but when he shoved her aside, she became furious, snatched up the first thing at hand, the scissors, and threw them at him. He had taken off his coat and vest and opened his shirt, so the sharp point of the scissors stuck in his body until he pulled it out.

The man made his way downstairs and sat on a chair there, trying to stop the flow of blood. The little boy ran screaming into the street and neighbors telephoned to the police. Chief Regan, with detective-sergeants Zimmerman and Eisasser, hurried to the house in the police automobile and arrested Mrs. McNamara. They took the injured man to the hospital.

The little boy ran after the automobile in his night clothes, crying to go with her, and Chief Regan stopped the car and took him along. He remained with his mother in the matron's department at police headquarters last night.

INDUSTRIAL SITE SOLD.

Plot of 25 Acres at Niagara Falls Changes Hands.

One of the most important transactions in some time in industrial property along the Niagara Frontier has just been announced by Parke, Hall & Co., who report the sale of the Easle property, 25 acres on Buffalo avenue in Niagara Falls close to the power-house of the Niagara Falls Power Company. This is one of the finest manufacturing sites in that city, and was practically the last piece of vacant property available for manufacturing purposes in the south end of the city, on the tracks of the New York Central and Erie railroads. The purchase price is not made public, but it is generally understood to be around $60,000.

The owner was A. D. Bissell, president of the People's Bank, who is acting for out-of-town parties. The property has an extensive frontage on Buffalo boulevard, which is paved with asphalt brick and has direct trolley service to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, with city sewer and water systems and with conduits for electric current to be supplied by either of the big power companies at the Falls.

The sale of this property constitutes one of the largest transfers of industrial realty that has taken place in Niagara Falls in a long while. It was sold on

GREAT FIELD OF GOLFERS

Total of 131 Will Tee off for the National Open Championship at Country Club Today.

IS A RECORD LIST

Leading Professionals and Amateurs of the Country Gathered Here for the Big Event.

LINKS A BUSY PLACE

Scores of the Experts Out in Final Practice Yesterday—Public Invited to Witness Tournament.

With the morning's rising sun, an unprecedented field of the nation's premier golfers will begin play today upon the links of the Country club of Buffalo, for the title of open-golf champion of the United States. Never before in the history of the United States Golf association, since the establishing of the open-golf championship tournament seventeen years ago, has such an overwhelming number of entries been received for any golfing event, not even excepting the amateur championship tourney. The entire list, closed last evening, numbered 131, of the best and foremost amateur and professional players, or exactly 40 more than have ever heretofore entered to compete for the open championship in this country.

An Early Start.

Due to the unexpected and exceptional number of entries, the time for start of play has twice necessarily been changed. Play will begin this morning at 6:30 o'clock, as finally announced by Secretary Robert S. Watson of the United States Golf association. The list of pairing has been completely revised in consequence, and under the new order of things, the honor of first teeing off has fallen between C. W. Deibel, an amateur of the Youngstown Country club, and A. H. Murry, professional of the Outremont Golf club.

Thereafter pairs will tee off from the first tee at intervals of five minutes, the last pair leaving, according to schedule, at 11:55 a. m. It is expected that out of the 131 entered fully 125 will be on hand this morning to start the medal play. The day's play consists of two rounds of medal play, out the first eighteen holes and the return, a total of 36 holes. At the completion of play late this afternoon, those whose scores fall below the low score by fifteen strokes will not continue in the competition tomorrow.

On Friday, as today, two rounds will also be played. The golfer having the lowest score for the two days' play assumes the title of open golf champion of the United States.

Links in Fine Condition.

The condition of the Country club course is ideal under existing conditions. However, the extreme drought of the early summer has made the links unusually fast and low scores will doubtless be in order today, as they have been during the last days of practice. The links for four days past have been a scene of animation. Most

John McKee, six years old, of No. 235 Virginia street was knocked down last night by an automobile driven by Carl Klein of No. 121 Howard street and died soon after in the Columbus Hospital.

The boy was on the rear step of an ice wagon which had stopped in front of a saloon at No. 234 Virginia street and when the driver came, jumped off and ran directly in front of the automobile, all witnesses agree. The wheels passed over him, tracking his skull and breaking his leg.

The auto stopped immediately and carried the boy without delay to the hospital, where he died within an hour. The car was then driven to the police station on Niagara street, where the occupants made statements and were not held. In the car beside the driver and his wife were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Klein of No. 230 Sherman street.

FARMHAND IS KILLED.

Garage Employee Knocks Him Out on the Genesee Road.

A farmhand who worked for George Lornze, a farmer on the Genesee road near the Transit road, was killed by an automobile about 7:30 o'clock last night near the farmhouse. The automobile was driven by Jacob Sugg, employed by C. C. Clifford, manager of the Edward street garage, and in the car with him was Peter Armbrust of No. 444 Sherman street.

The farmhand was unconscious when picked up and placed in the automobile, and died on the way in to the German Deaconess hospital.

Dr. George B. Stocker, deputy medical examiner, said death had been caused by a fracture at the base of the skull. The man's right leg was broken. The body was sent to the morgue.

Sugg, with Armbrust, drove to No. 13 police station on Genesee street and made statements. Sugg said he was traveling east on the Genesee road about 25 miles an hour when at a curve about a quarter of a mile from the Transit road he came upon a man walking in the road. Sugg says he tooted his horn and when about 35 feet from the man, the fellow suddenly started across the road. Sugg says he turned as far to the left of the road as was possible, but the right guard struck the man, throwing him to one side.

The unconscious man was placed in the car and Sugg drove fast to the German Deaconess hospital, where, when the surgeons examined the man, they found he was dead.

Mr. Clifford said last night that Sugg had been working for him for several years and he had always considered him a very careful driver. This is the first accident Sugg ever had, according to Mr. Clifford.

An inquest will be held after making statements. Sugg was released, as far as could be learned, there were no other witnesses to the accident.

OFF ON LONG LINKS RACE

With the eighteenth annual national open golf championship at the Buffalo Country Club halfway merged in history, there is a triple tie for first place between Matthew Brady, Boston; Percy Barrett, Toronto, and Alexander Smith, New York, at 147 strokes. It is as much anyone's race as ever and last night the bookmakers are in as much doubt as at the start. On the first round there was also a triple tie at 72, between Brady, George Sargent, Washington, former titleholder, and Dan Kenny, once of Buffalo, but now of Canada and former Dominion champion. In the afternoon the latter went to pieces, while Sargent could not keep his pace. Barrett, who had been only two strokes behind the leaders in the morning at 74 pinched out a 73 in the afternoon, while Alexander Smith, irritated by a nondescript 77 for a start, scratched gravel and landed a 70, the best eighteen holes of the day, which brought him to first notch.

Brady is the Hub Irish homebred, who along with Tom McNamara has given the modern Athens fame for seven years in the Celtic self-taught division. Along with Jack McDermott, Atlantic City, present titleholder, they have kept the native Scots guessing. Brady was in a triple tie last year for the United States title, but lost on the play off. Barrett, a few years ago was a top liner, but has taken on girth lately until he is easily the biggest man in the field. Sargent, since his victory four years ago, has never been quite able to live up to the reputation he suddenly acquired. Barrett, nervous at the finish, tallied six on the home hole to par four, while Smith, in ending, had two fours for a 69, but getting bunkered for the only time, took five on the seventeenth, which is the allowance.

Tied Up at Second, Too.

Second place at 149 strokes was a tie between McDermott, Frank Peebles, Stockbridge, Mass., and Jack Campbell, Philadelphia, late of the Forest Hill Club, Newark. Third, bracketed at 150, stand George Sargent, Chevy Chase and J. M. Barnes, Tacoma, long-distance candidate. Fourth place, at 151, broke between Tom Anderson, Jr., Pittsburg, and Alexander Campbell, Boston.

No one with a total exceeding 165 can start tomorrow, the limit being placed at those more than fifteen strokes above tenth place. The leaders, with an average of 73 1/4 strokes, came perilously near the estimate of four 74's for winner made yesterday by Walter Travis.

Early on the Links.

The day, with 128 starters, against 90 as the next best record, was altogether too crowded for comfort and best results. Many contestants arose at 4 o'clock, and their early scores looked it. Gilbert Nicholls, Wilmington, last year's metropolitan open winner, was forced to get away incompletely dressed, with half a breakfast and a substitute caddy that broke his heart. Three days is talked of for the open next year, in order to avoid a repetition of such congestion.

WILSON'S GUEST

Senator and Candidate Discuss New York Situation

WILL BE NO FIGHT

Governor Wilson Will Not Intervene in Campaign

HE IS SILENT AS TO DIX

O'Gorman Merely Says There are Many Candidates for Nomination

New York Sun Special to The Express.
Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 1.—Governor Woodrow Wilson will be notified formally that he was nominated for the presidency by the Democrats at Baltimore next Wednesday. He will deliver his speech of acceptance from a bay of the veranda to the multitude which will be banked on the lawn in front of the house.

The indications are that there will be a great crowd present. They are figuring on from 2,000 to 10,000 persons by adding the summer-resorters.

The notification committee will meet at Hotel Imperial, New York, in the morning and will arrive at Sea Girt about 1 o'clock. They will be entertained at luncheon by the governor and as soon as this is ended the ceremonies will begin.

The governor had a busy time today. Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, member of the executive committee, spent the night at Sea Girt and talked about the progress of the work in the committee. Henry Morgenthau had a brief visit in the early morning. It is foregone that he will be either treasurer or chairman of the finance committee. Before the day was ended Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York and Joseph E. Davis, secretary of the national committee, also appeared to talk over committee matters.

Before taking the train to Washington, Senator O'Gorman said that announcement of the election of the vice chairman and treasurer of the national committee and chairman of the finance committee would be made by Chairman McCoombs in a day or two. He refused to make public the names of those selected.

Senator O'Gorman talked to the nominee for more than an hour, but he refused to say whether he had read the draft of the governor's speech of acceptance.

"Did you discuss the New York state situation with Governor Wilson?"

"Yes," he said, "That was one of the questions we discussed."

"Will there be opposition to the re-nomination of Governor Dix?"

"There are several candidates."

"Will Governor Wilson intervene in the state fight?"

"No," said the senator. "Neither the governor nor his friends will intervene."

"Is the situation such in New York state such as to give encouragement to Governor Wilson's managers?"

"New York will be carried by Gov. Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic state at winner, and that of McNamara, who month ago won the metropolitan open title by sterling play from a country-wide field. McNamara was steady in the morning, offsetting three sixes with one four to par six and a well-turned "birdie." He made 74. In the afternoon, he was 75, thanks to a seven on the eighth by hooking his second shot and using a creak when a mashie iron was the thing.

McNamara, with a 74 for a starter, looked good, but in the afternoon his card read 80, with an eight on the fifth, where he was ditched. Besides that, he had three puts on the eighth and went out of bounds on the sixth. "He earned everything he got all day," said his scorer.

Brady's Noteworthy Score.

Brady's score, being the most consistent of the leaders, was most noteworthy. He took three puts, however, on six holes. On each round he had a two. That in the morning called for a 20-foot put; in the afternoon ten feet sufficed.

The scoring on the whole, after the dog watch returned cards, was as good as could be expected. The visitors were bothered by the green greens, owing to the baked turf resting on a rocky foundation only a yard below the grass.

Seventy-eight men will line up for the third round.

Travis, who carried a distractingly large gallery, led the amateurs handily enough, getting a capital 73 in the morning, but in the afternoon he was consistently high throughout with a 79, ending with two wretched sixes by getting bunkered. At 152 he is triple tied for fifth place.

Best, single round, Alex Smith:

Out.....5 3 4 4 4 4 4 2-35
In.....5 4 4 3 3 4 2 5 4-35-70

The best nine holes were George Simpson's homeward journey in the afternoon, 34.

The Amateurs.

Outside of Travis and Young Gardner the local player who is forging ahead in scholastic ranks, the amateurs did not accomplish much more than is their wont, although John G. Anderson, Boston, twice Bay State champion and runner up this year and last in the French championship, was only one stroke above the latter. Howard Lee, Yale, runner up, last Saturday in the Michigan state struggle, after twice holding the honor, averaged 81. James M. Rhett, Brooklyn, who had a surprisingly fast round in qualifying for the national amateur last fall, by just one stroke fell outside the breastworks. So did E. S. Robeson, Oak Hills, while Percy Platt, amateur titleholder of Greater New York, was two strokes to the bad. Yet two years ago Platt led the amateurs brilliantly in the Metropolitan open championships at Deal. "Tommy" Sherman, son of the vice president, was a stroke above Platt, not being able to strike one of his occasional great bursts of speed. Parke Wright, although upon his native heath, was six strokes over the brim. Robert Watson, New York, was topping so outrageously that he came near the bottom of the list. Two choose to withdraw.

SMOKING BOX INCITES FEAR

Driver Scents Infernal Machine
in Sweating Matches.

PACKAGE IS SOAKED

Water Increases Vapor and Trade Secret Leaks Out.

From the Albany Knickerbocker-Press.

"An infernal machine," yelled Joseph Grainer, a driver for the National Express company, as he saw what he thought was smoke coming from a small wooden-cased tin box in the back of his wagon. Joseph sprang from the vehicle and dashed into a bakeshop nearby.

"Quick," he shouted, "give me a pail of water, I've got an infernal machine in my wagon."

He was given the bucket of water and in a moment had returned to the wagon and doused the box. Then he lifted it out and threw it into the gutter.

"Geel!" he murmured, "what a narrow escape!" He was preparing to put the box back into the wagon when more smoke, apparently, began to come from it.

Joseph became excited. He hadn't taken a drink that whole afternoon, and he couldn't understand why the darn thing should smoke, after he had thrown water on it. He became alarmed, and rushed back into the store. He went to the telephone.

"Hello," he said, when someone in the office of the National Express company had taken down the receiver, and answered: "This is Grainer. I've got an infernal machine down here. It was smoking in my wagon and getting ready to go off, and I threw water on it and then threw it into the gutter. What will I do about it?"

"Don't touch it until I get there," Joseph was told by the person at the other end of the line. The man in the express office then called up William Van Rensselaer Erving, commissioner of public safety, and told him about the box. Mr. Erving arrived immediately. He found a crowd gathered about the wagon, and one of the men from the express office directed Joseph how to open the infernal machine. After hesitating for a few moments, Joseph decided to take a chance, and the box was opened.

The wooden crate was removed from the outside and the cover of the tin box was pried open. Another smaller tin box was found inside. When this was opened it was found to contain perfor matches. There was no indication of fire, and Mr. Erving and some of the others began to smile.

Grainer, the driver, was chagrined. The others began joshing him. His face became red, and he blurted out:

"Well, how did I know the box contained matches? If you saw smoke coming from it after it was doused with water, you would have been scared, too. I didn't think it was hot enough to

M'DERMOTT, CHAMPION

Atlantic City Professional Succeeds Himself as Result of Big National Open Tournament Over Country Club Golf Links.

M'NAMARA A LIVELY RUNNER-UP

Competition Resulted in a Sweep for the Homebreds, Matt Brady and John Dowling Coming Easily into the Money—Gardner Did Splendidly.

Yesterday was the greatest day for the homebred professional in American golf history, and it may be incidentally remarked for the Irish as well. The Scotch got a little of the frosting. John J. McDermott, Atlantic City, recaptured his title of national open champion at the Buffalo Country club, while Tom McNamara, Boston, who won the Metropolitan open, within a month, for a second time within three years proved the runner up. All the Macks in the saddle class will now please step forward. Merit has never better served.

It is the third time in three years that McDermott has been at low score in the national. Last year and the year before there was a triple tie. In 1910 McDermott lost on the playoff, but took second money. Last year he won. McNamara was runner up at Englewood in 1909, when George Sargent won, and nearly all the professionals declared that course was not of championship caliber; but could not score over it. Going down the list the trail of the home bred is over all with Aleck Smith placed in between them. Matt Brady, who tied for third place, has done a sort of a Boston brother team homebred act with McNamara for eight years. John Dowling of New York, who also got into the money, was executing saddle specialty in short trousers within three seasons. Practically all of them started as club-bearers. McDermott got $300 and McNamara $150, Brady and Alex Smith (tied) $90 each. Alexander Campbell, Boston, was fifth, $70; George Sargent Washington, sixth, $60; John Dowling, New York, and Otto Hackbarth, Chicago, $45 apiece, and C. R. Murray, Montreal, ninth, $30. Philie, Frank, Peebles, Stockbridge, Mass., Tom Anderson, Jr., Pittsburg, and Walter J. Travis, Garden City, received $10 each. The latter, as the only amateur above eleventh place, must take his share in plate. Out of nearly a dozen Dominion entrants only one carried away money.

Winner Exceeded Expectation.

McDermott did better than expected. It was thought he would come near the top without recapturing his title. McNamara, because of his recent foray at Apawamis, had more money wagered upon him. Hadly, although now a titleholder, was considered the least likely to win. The contest of the day, however, may be between McDermott and Doni. And Smith, Gilbert, Nichols and Paul, McLean.

Yesterday's continuous thunderstorm performance probably did not make much difference in results, although it gave young Tom Anderson a chill that nearly floated him outside the cash. Somehow the skise would not "look pleasant, please," although a battalion

PROFRANCESCO

Body of Steward Picked Up by Retainers

Philippine, the wife of the body of which character the shipward of the Tanager, was seen on the 11th in. Middle of the beach, between 11 and west by the British steamer the Lord, while she was coming from Cebu to Hamburg. The captain of the boat was reported here today by the chief officer of the Lord, which arrived in this port yesterday.

Chief Officer W. F. Bennett was on the bridge at 8 o'clock on the morning of June 22, when he saw a smaller object floating. With the aid of his glasses he was able to distinguish that it was a human body. He immediately signaled to the engine-room to stop the vessel. A lifeboat was lowered and it was found that around the body a life-preserver was securely fastened. The body was taken aboard the lifer. There were found a watch with the initials engraved on it, and many personal effects of value which the dead steward had evidently collected as those trying to earn just before the vessel plunged to the bottom of the sea. His official papers were found water-soaked in his pocket and it was from these that his identity was finally ascertained.

The body was badly decomposed. It was buried at sea.

New York Sun Special to The Express.
New York, Aug. 2.—Colonel Roosevelt sent today to Julian Harris, of Atlanta, an open letter, reading: "Southern negroes out of the National Progressive party. He frankly intrusts the movement to the 'best white man of the south.' He attributes the recent split in the Republican party to the dominance of negroes over the party in the southern states."

He says it would be "cathartic" for the new party to try to make itself up in those states by the same methods which continued for 40 years have made the Republican party "more than twice as big as it was."

He hopes the struggle will not become unpopular, but says justice is impos-plonship of the United States. The Country club held open house to all and the great crowd which took ad- vantage of the opportunity of witness- ing the best of the country's amateur and professional golfers in competition for the nation's title, an opportunity of a life time, was very gratifying to the club and the golf committee.

The present tournament has been by far the largest in the history of the United States Golf association, with 40 more entries than ever before. Received for a like event, a total of 121. The Country club golf committee and the United States Golf association, working hand in hand, ran the tournament off with dispatch and without hitch. Great credit is due both bodies for the pre- cision of the play. Of course, it was un- fortunate that the first round was nec- essarily started at such an early hour as 6.30, an unprecedented occurrence in a golf tournament, but the unexpected number of entries necessitated the changing of the hour from 9 a.m. to that unearthly early time. Next season it is anticipated that three days' play will constitute the time length of the tournament to eliminate a like oc- currence. Each year the entry list grows and next year it is thought, if the time is increased from two to three days of competition, much congesting of the course and other unfortunate handicaps which occurred during the tournament just completed, will be eliminated.

Awarding the Prizes.

Last evening the prizes were award- ed to the winners in the tournament. When President Elias H. Strawn of the United States Golf Association presented for a second consecutive time the national open golf champion- ship trophy a massive silver offering, to the winner of the tourney, Jack Mc- Dermott, Mac was called up for a speech of acceptance. In his very well- chosen reply to Mr. Strong, McDermott said: "I am very glad to have once again carried of the laurels." He mention- ed the fact that "Inasmuch as I have again won these laurels and proved that I am in form, next year I may once more try my luck on the other side." McDermott failed to place in the final round for the English cham- pionship last spring, but did some- what better in the French champlon- ships a few weeks later, though he failed to come within the money.

Plasure simply radiated from the face of the youthful champion as he stood before the crowd of cheering pro- fessionals at the Country Club last evening and received the medal and trophy accompanying the title of open champion of the United States at the royal and ancient sport. He had not expected it after his rather poor form of the spring and early summer. That he was pleased is beyond question.

Each of the money winners said a few words, was forced to, in fact, by their colleagues and the crowd which edged about them as the prizes were given out. Walter Travis refused to take his equivalent in plate, which is accorded a winning amateur by the as- sociation instead of a check. Travis has too much plate about his home al- ready, so he said.

President Strong of the United States Golf Association highly complimented the Country Club of Buffalo, and par- ticularly the golf committee at whose head towers Gannon Depew, to whom the credit of obtaining the open cham- pionship this season is entirely due as is the sterling condition of the course. Mr. Strong said that never in his con- nection with the association had the body been so unflatteringly aided by a number of one of the nation's tour-

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The completion of the two rounds of medal play in the open golf championship of the United States over the course of the Buffalo Country Club to-day left seventy-eight golfers with scores low enough to qualify for the final thirty-six holes to be played to-morrow. Three were with a low score of 147—Alex. Smith, Wykagyl; M. J. Brady, Wollaston; and P. F. Barrett of Lambton. All played with 16 points higher than the tenth low score, 163, start the third round to-morrow morning.

 during the afternoon by Alex. Smith Wykagyl, who had a 77 in the morning.
 His 70 in the afternoon brought him into low place. Walter J. Travis still remains low amateur, but he fell down considerably on his second round this afternoon, making the eighteen holes in 78 strokes, after scoring a 73 during the morning.
 Total of 152. J. J. McDermott, present holder of the open title, is playing in the excellent form, having a score of 74, 75, 149. Tom McNamara, recent winner the metropolitan championship, got a in the first round, but two poor holes gave him 80 this afternoon, totaling 160.
 The ten low cards follow:

- P. F. Barrett, Lambton G. C., 74-78-147.
- Alex. Smith, Wykagyl G. C., 77-70-147.

falo with 294.

NEW MARK TO M'NAMARA.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 2.—(Special.)—J. J. McDermott of the Country club of Atlantic City today again won the title of golf champion of the United States on the links of the Buffalo Country club. In doing so he disposed of one of the strongest fields of golfers pitted against each other in several years.

McDermott's card for the two days' medal play, 72 holes, was 294. Tom McNamara of Boston, the Metropolitan champion, his nearest opponent, turned in a card of 290, and but for a bad afternoon yesterday would have landed the cup and title. His total for 72 today was the lowest of the tournament, and his 69 in the afternoon round established a new record for the Country club major.

Alex. Smith Finishes Third.

Alex. Smith of the Wykagyl C. C. finished third. In accepting the medal and cup at the Country club this evening McDermott intimated that he might again try for honors abroad next season.

Walter J. Travis won first honors among the amateurs, his total of 307 being equal to tenth place in the professional ranks.

MORE PRAISE FOR THE TEAM.

Col. Thompson Enthusiastic in Letter
Over Olympic Success.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Secretary Meyer of the navy received at his home in Hiamilton, Mass., yesterday, and forwarded to the department here, a letter from Col. Robert M. Thompson, Chairman of the American Olympic Games Committee, giving an account of the achievements of the American athletes at Stockholm during June and July. Col. Thompson, as a graduate of the Naval Academy and ardent supporter of the navy and its development, wrote with great enthusiasm of the performances of the Americans. The letter was written on the yacht Castania, off Stockton, July 19. Col. Thompson says:

I take the liberty of reporting to you on the officers whom you permitted to come to the games, on the rifle and fencing teams. The rifle team, as you have learned from the reports in the press, took the highest honors. The Swedish officials and people considered the presence of the officers of the navy and army a compliment to Sweden and in every way they showed their appreciation of the compliment. Lieut. Osborn, especially, distinguished himself. In one contest he made nineteen consecutive "bullseyes." The twentieth shot could not be found on the target, and it was marked a miss. This must have been due to a defective cartridge, or to the shot having passed through one of the other holes, without leaving a trace. The team was ably led by Lieut. Commander Laning, who inspired his men by his own high sense of devotion to duty. The way our team was handled was a subject of constant remark, and the King took occasion to come to the field on purpose to see our men and the rifles. One great service of the officers of the team was their inspiration to the athletes, by their ready submission to drill and to orders, which impressed the young men and did much in securing a feeling of goodwill which has made these Olympic games an exception to all that have taken place before.

Reception for Sockalexis.

OLDTOWN, Me., Aug. 2.—Andrew Sockalexis, the Penobscot Indian, back from the Olympic games at Stockholm, where he finished fourth in the Marathon, was tendered a great reception on his arrival in his home city to-night. An automobile bearing Sockalexis and his trainer headed a procession of half a hundred motor cars and a long line of people from the railroad station to the City Hall, where Mayor Stephens and other prominent citizens said words of praise for the athlete. After a general reception Sockalexis went home to his tribe, and on crossing the ferry found the braves lined up to give him another welcome home.

OUTRIGERS AT TERNING

M'DERMOTT WINS
OPEN GOLF TITLEAtlantic City Professional Repeats Last Year's Performance—Travis Finishes Tenth.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 2.—J. J. McDermott, professional of the Country Club of Atlantic City for the second consecutive time to-day won the tournament for the open golf championship of the United States. Triple-tied last year for the championship at Chicago, McDermott won the title on the play-off and the year previous he was runner-up for the open title.

McDermott was two strokes beyond low at the completion of the second round of medal play yesterday and following the third round this morning was three strokes behind M. J. Brady of Wollaston, Boston. During the afternoon, McDermott went to first place and won the title by a score of 71, Brady blowing up and turning in a card of 79 which dropped him into fourth place.

Tom McNamara, Boston, Metropolitan champion, made a new record for the course with a 69 this afternoon which brought him into second place in the finals. He was in fourth place at noon and was seven strokes behind low at the close of play yesterday. His spurt was the sensation of the tournament. Alex Smith of Wykagyl was placed third, a position he occupied at the end of the third round.

Walter J. Travis of Garden City, was low amateur. He turned in a card of 807 for the 72 holes, tied with two professionals for tenth position.

The prizes were presented to-night to the first ten low scores by President Silas R. Strawn, of the United States Golf Association. McDermott, on receiving the medal, the championship cup and the purse, stated that having somewhat recovered his laurels since his rather poor showing in the English Championship and in France, he would again try his luck across the water.

A heavy cold rain poured down on the Country Club links this morning and had much to do with the high scores reported. Play for the Western New York championship opens to-morrow and will continue through Tuesday. The scores:

PARKWAY MEETING CLOSSES.

Good Racing Witnessed in Final Day's Racing.

After four days of successful harness racing, the best seen in the vicinity for many years, the four-day meeting at the Parkway track, Brooklyn, came to a close yesterday. During the four days a total of $8,400 was distributed among the campaigners of half-mile tracks, and the management, in addition to hanging up the purses, managed to clear a good profit.

The feature event of the programme, the 2:20 trot, the last of the big purses, went in straight heats when Rhine Malden, a bay mare, took the honors with a capital performance in each heat.

Five heats were necessary to determine the money winners in the other two events on the card, the 2:12 pace and 2:12 trot. Nat Ray, former steeplechase jockey, managed to score another victory by capturing the 2:12 pace with Johnny Hube, a bay gelding from Canada.

Only five horses made up the field in the last event of the day, the 2:12 trot, but the race was productive of some close and exciting finishes. The first two heats were split, and the field all figured in the standing. Beginning the third, Cascade, a chestnut stallion, came out in the next three heats and annexed the victory of each and the race. The summaries:

officers whom you permitted to come to the games, on the rifle and fencing teams. The rifle team, as you have learned from the reports in the press, took the highest honors. The Swedish officials and people considered the presence of the officers of the navy and army a compliment to Sweden and in every way they showed their appreciation of the compliment. Lieut. Osborn, especially, distinguished himself. In one contest he made nineteen consecutive "bullseyes." The twentieth shot could not be found on the target, and it was marked a miss. This must have been due to a defective cartridge, or to the shot having passed through one of the other holes without striking the target. The team was led by Lieut. Commander Lanning, who inspired his men by his own high sense of devotion to duty.

The way our team was handled was a subject of constant remark, and the King took occasion to come to the field on purpose to see our men and the rifles. One great service of the officers of the team was their inspiration to the athletes, by their ready submission to drill and to orders, which impressed the young men and did much in securing a feeling of goodwill which has made these Olympic games an exception to all that have taken place before.

OLDTOWN, Me., Aug. 2.—Andrew Sockalexis, the Penobscot Indian, back from the Olympic games at Stockholm, where he finished fourth in the Marathon, was tendered a great reception on his arrival in his home city to-night. An automobile bearing Sockalexis and his trailer headed a procession of half a hundred motor cars and a long line of people from the railroad station to the City Hall, where Mayor Stephens and other prominent citizens said words of praise for the athlete. After a general reception Sockalexis went home to his tribe, and on crossing the ferry found the braves lined up to give him another welcome home.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—By winning second place in the second of a series of three races for the Gold Challenge Cup of the American Power Boat Association at Alexandria Bay to-day the P. D. Q. II., owned by Capt. A. G. Mills and representing the Thousand Island Yacht Club, held the lead with thirteen points to her credit. Eight boats started yesterday and the P. D. Q. II. finished first, securing 8 points. To-day there were six boats and second to finish gets five, the first getting six.

Baby Reliance of the Motor Boat Club of America finished first; P. D. Q. II., second; Wasp, Thousand Island Park Yacht Club, third; Guess Not, Clayton Yacht Club, fourth; Mitt II., St. Lawrence River Yacht Club, fifth; Syracuse, Yacht Club, sixth. Time and total points:

Attention was chiefly devoted to H. H. Braly, the newest of the California lawn tennis players to invade the East, and to Karl H. Behr and Raymond D. Little, the veterans, and the youthful wizard, Norris Williams, in the second day's play in the New York State championship on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge. Braly first disposed of W. D. Hadsell, a local player, at 6-2, 3 and then finished off with Seton Porter at 6-2, 6-1.

States. Triple-knied last year for the championship at Chicago, McDermott won the title on the play-off and the year previous he was runner-up for the open title.

McDermott was two strokes beyond low at the completion of the second round of medal play yesterday and following the third round this morning was three strokes behind M. J. Brady of Wollaston, Boston. During the afternoon, McDermott went to first place and won the title by a score of 71, Brady blowing up and turning in a card of 79 which dropped him into fourth place.

Tom McNamara, Boston, Metropolitan champion, made a new record for the course with a 63 this afternoon which brought him into second place in the finals: He was in fourth place at noon and was seven strokes behind low at the close of play yesterday. His spurt was the sensation of the tournament. Alex Smith of Wykagyl was placed third, a position he occupied at the end of the third round.

Walter J. Travis of Garden City, was low amateur. He turned in a card of 307 for the 72 holes, tied with two professionals for tenth position.

The prizes were presented to-night to the first ten low scores by President Silas R. Strawn, of the United States Golf Association. McDermott, on receiving the medal, the championship cup and the purse, stated that having somewhat recovered his laurels since his rather poor showing in the English Championship and in France, he would again try his luck across the water.

A heavy cold rain poured down on the Country Club links this morning and had much to do with the high scores reported. Play for the Western New York championship opens to-morrow and will continue through Tuesday. The scores:

2:12 trot. Nat Ray, former steeplechase jockey, managed to score another victory by capturing the 2:12 pace with Johnny Hube, a bay gelding from Canada.

Only five horses made up the field in the last event of the day, the 2-12 trot, but the race was productive of some close and exciting finishes. The first two heats were split, and the field all figured in the standing. Beginning the third, Cascade, a chestnut stallion, came out in the next three heats and annexed the victory of each and the race. The summaries:

Capt. E. D. Miller will be in charge of the team which will bring over eighty ponies.

CANADIANS ARRIVE.

Follow the Northern Length of the Probable Route of the Proposed Pacific Highway.

LET A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES:
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The Victoria, (B. C.) delegation to the Pacific Highway Association convention, to be held here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, arrived this afternoon in automobiles, having followed the northern length of the probable route of the proposed Pacific highway. The Seattle delegation, which had accompanied them as far as Sacramento, and then turned off for a side trip, rejoined them tonight.
The worst stretch of road was found was between Dunsmuir and Dunning.
In this stretch, said A. E. Todd, president of the Victoria Automobile Club, who piloted the party, "The road between these two points is extremely dangerous. Nowhere else did we find anything but good roads. The trip has shown us that, as now mapped, the highway will be open only for six months of the year."

"In Washington the roads were very good; in Oregon not so good. At least a portion of our party will return to the north over the ocean road, and we shall map it carefully on the chance that it may be a better route than the one we traveled."

TURKEY WANTS PEACE.

London Hears That the Sultan Has Named a Mission to Negotiate
Terms With the Italians.

LET A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES:

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A dispatch from Constantinople says the Turkish government has appointed a mission to discuss peace between Turkey and Italy and that it will meet the Italian delegates at Lausanne, Switzerland.
According to a statement published this morning by The Daily Express, the seizure of Tripoli by Italy was one of the facts that Italy got wind of German negotiations at Constantinople to acquire rights in Tripoli by purchase, which would be tantamount to giving Germany actual possession of the country.

Bombs exploded in the marketplace of Kotschanna, fifty miles southwest of Usmar, European Turkey, yesterday, killing or wounding fifty persons, according to a dispatch from Salonika.

the Sacramento River is Likely to Be Held Up for a While.

LET A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES:

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Aug. 2.—At-

of differences with dredger owners having failed, 200 men will tomorrow quit work in obedience to a strike order issued today by local No. 485 of the International Steam Engineers' Union. This action means that private contract work now being done in various portions of the Sacramento River, San Pablo Bay and Suisun will come to a halt unless the demands of the men are granted. The men demand a standard scale of wages for seamen, firemen and deckhands, a six day week, and 50 cents an hour for Sunday overtime.

Alice D. Drexel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel of Philadelphia, well known in eastern society circles, narrowly escaped serious injury today when her automobile was struck by an automobile delivery wagon.

Miss Drexel was thrown on a lawn and suffered nothing worse than a shaking up. Her maid, Marie Lag-iere, received a slight concussion of the brain, and her chauffeur, George Koschey, had a leg broken, besides suffering other injuries.

Mrs. Shuyesant Fish, who was near by, called doctors and an ambulance and the maid and chauffeur were removed to a hospital. Miss Drexel was able to go home.

Birthrate Among Cows Is Decreas-ing Also said. Another Boom in Price of Meats Is Expected.

(By Federal Wireman) (See to The Times)

CHICAGO, BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 2.—(Special Dispatch.)
It was declared today by Chicago dealers in livestock that if more of the farmers of the country did not turn to the raising of livestock, the price of meat would soar so high that it would be out of the reach of any but the very wealthy.

Cattle are so scarce, according to Charles E. Joret, president of the association here, that there practically is a famine of meat.

The present price of beef are higher than they have been for forty years and they are said to be likely to go higher.

Stanford University, in a speech today, advocated the establishment of a national defense commission as a means of curbing the exorbitant expenditures now made by this country in common with other great nations for armament.
"What we need most," said Dr. Jordan, "is a national defense commission of statesmen and that we be governed by the recommendations of this commission."

peats Last Year's Performance—Travis Finishes Tenth.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 2.—J. J. McDermott, professional of the Country Club of Atlantic City for the second consecutive time to-day won the tournament for the open golf championship of the United States. Triple-tied last year for the championship at Chicago, McDermott won the title on the play-off and the year previous he was runner-up for the open title.

McDermott was two strokes beyond low at the completion of the second round of medal play yesterday and following the third round this morning was three strokes behind M. J. Brady of Wollaston, Boston. During the afternoon, McDermott went to first place and won the title by a score of 71, Brady blowing up and turning in a card of 79 which dropped him into fourth place.

Tom McNamara, Boston, Metropolitan champion, made a new record for the course with a 69 this afternoon which brought him into second place in the finals. He was in fourth place at noon and was seven strokes behind low at the close of play yesterday. His spurt was the sensation of the tournament. Alex Smith of Wykagyl was placed third, a position he occupied at the end of the third round.

Walter J. Travis of Garden City, was low amateur. He turned in a card of 307 for the 72 holes, tied with two professionals for tenth position.

The prizes were presented to-night to the first ten low scores by President Silas R. Strawn, of the United States Golf Association. McDermott, on receiving the medal, the championship cup and the purse, stated that having somewhat recovered his laurels since his rather poor showing in the English Championship and in France, he would again try his luck across the water.

A heavy cold rain poured down on the Country Club links this morning and had much to do with the high scores reported. Play for the Western New York championship opens to-morrow and will continue through Tuesday. The scores:

COOPERSTOWN BEATS MEADOW BROOK FOUR

Special to The New York Times.
NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 1.—A contest that recalled the most glorious ever held in the sport of mallet and ball marked the second game for the open championship to-day at the Point Judith Polo Club. The result was that, playing without handicaps, Cooperstown beat Meadow Brook by 3/4 to 3 goals. Meadow Brook was short of L. Waterbury, who was called from the field by a death in the family of his wife, and Harrison Tweed took his place. He is one of the rising Long Island players, and on the excellent mounts furnished him held his own very well. Each team scored 4 goals, and penalties, really settled the issue. There were three safeties forced on Cooperstown and Meadow Brook had penalties for two fouls. Until within twenty seconds of the end Meadow Brook led by 3/4 to 3/4, but then the last foul was marked against them and it gave the victory by one-quarter goal.

In the Army and Navy Cup series the Philadelphia Country Club beat the Point Judith, giving 6; by 17 to 11. The game between Piping Rock and Great Neck was deferred, but the players had a three-period practice game. The summaries:

FOOTE PRINCE WINS PURSE.

Jersey Pacer Scores Easy Victory on Parkway Track.

C. E. Pitman of Trenton, N. J., carried off the premier honors yesterday at the third day's racing of the four-day purse meeting at Parkway track, Brooklyn, when he drove his chestnut pacing stallion Foote Prince to victory in the feature event of the meeting, the 2:00 pace for a purse of $1,000.

I-Am-It, a bay mare, driven by Hart Curry of Baldwin Place, N. Y., took the 2:27 trot in straight heats. Fifteen horses made up the field for this event, and Starter Biggs experienced some difficulty in getting them off. After once getting away, I-Am-It showed superior form to the rest of the field, and won her heats with comparative ease. The little mare came in for considerable comment from the onlookers for her capital performance. She led her fields in each heat from the half-mile post, and trotted the last two heats in 2:20 1/4.

After finishing in seventh position in the first heat of the 2:17 pace owing to a bad start, Chief Justice, a powerful black gelding, driven by R. H. Mackenzie of Englewood, N. J., took the race with easy victories in the three following heats.

The meeting closes to-day with three events—a 2:20 trot for a purse of $1,000; 2:12 pace, purse $400, and 2:12 trot, purse $400. The summaries:

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The completion of the two rounds of medal play in the open golf championship of the United States over the course of the Buffalo Country Club to-day left seventy-eight golfers with scores low enough to qualify for the final thirty-six holes, to be played to-morrow. Three were tied with a low score of 147—Alex Smith, Wykagyl; M. J. Brady, Wollaston, and P. F. Barrett of Lambton. The low score of the course was made during the afternoon by Alex Smith of Wykagyl, who had a 77 in the morning. His 70 in the afternoon brought him into low place. Walter J. Travis still remains low amateur, but he fell down considerably on his second round this afternoon, making the eighteen holes in 70 strokes, after scoring a 73 during the morning, a total of 152. J. J. McDermott, present holder of the open title, is playing in excellent form, having a score of 74, 76, 140. Tom McNamara, recent winner of the metropolitan championship, got a 74 in the first round, but two poor holes gave him 80 this afternoon, totaling 154. The ten low cards follow:

Rubinstein Recovers Lead.

BRESLAU, Aug. 1.—A. K. Rubinstein, the Russian champion, recovered the lead in the international chess masters' tournament by adding 1 1/2 points to his score, the result of a victory over Spielman of Munich in the thirteenth round, and a draw with Dr. Tarrasch in their adjourned game from the eleventh round. Richard Teichmann drew against Cohn and slipped back into second place, where he is tied with Duras and Dr. Tarrasch. Duras gained slightly on the other leaders by defeating Carls, while Dr. Tarrasch had to be content with a draw against Lewitzky. Marshall, the United States champion, remained in fifth place, bracketed with Schlechter, as the American drew with Miemas of Leipzig, while the Austrian champion drew against Barasz. The remaining games, with the exception of the one between...

John J. McDermott was the first native American to win the U.S. Open. From early youth, the well-mannered McDermott forsook alcohol and tobacco. Though a good student, he left high school before finishing to become a golf professional. While working at the Atlantic City C.C., McDermott followed a regimen of early morning practice, a full day's work in the golf shop, as many holes of golf as the afternoon and evening allowed, then after-dusk putting practice by lamplight.

In his first U.S. Open in 1909, he tied for 49th place. Determined to improve, he intensified his practice and saw the results in the next year's Open. McDermott finished tied for the lead, but lost in a playoff to Alex Smith—he later warned Smith that the outcome would be different the following year. True to his word, McDermott played a bit better in 1911, and again he found himself in a playoff for the title, this time with Mike Brady and George Simpson. McDermott prevailed.

With his win, he became the youngest winner of any U.S. Open. At 19 years, 10 months, he was and is the only teenager ever to win the Open. More importantly to some U.S. fans, McDermott's triumph put an end to the 16-year domination of the American championship by visiting or immigrant British players. McDermott journeyed to Buffalo the following year to repeat as Open champ, this time with a final round 71.

McDermott was a perfectionist whose pride in his accomplishments was wounded by assertions from the British press that his wins were mere flukes. He set his sights on Muirfield and the 1912 British Open as a means of muting his critics. He looked impressive in practice rounds, but during the qualifying round shot a humiliating 96 and was on his way back to America before the championship began.

In 1913 McDermott continued his outstanding golf, winning the Western Open and the Philadelphia Open. He returned to the British Open, played at Hoylake, and in foul weather shot 315 to finish fifth.

At age 23, McDermott appeared headed for a sterling career and a comfortable life. But when he arrived back in the States after his fifth-place British Open finish, he learned that a stock in which he had invested heavily had plummeted in price, ruining his finances. At the 1913 U.S. Open, played at Brookline, McDermott finished a disappointing eighth. His great confidence was giving way to doubt.

During the summer of 1914, the British Open was held at Prestwick. McDermott entered with the idea of winning the championship and restoring his lofty standing in international golf. But he missed a ferry crossing and turned up late for qualifying play. Even though officials were willing to bend the rules and let him play, McDermott declined their offer, claiming it would be unfair to the other players. Disappointed, he sailed home on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, which crashed with another ship in the English Channel. McDermott escaped unharmed, but the experience further undermined him emotionally.

At the 1914 U.S. Open, McDermott was not a factor, finishing T-9. The following month he fainted in Atlantic City and was taken to his parents' home in Philadelphia. He was diagnosed as being mentally unstable and in 1915 suffered an emotional breakdown. For the rest of his life, McDermott was in and out of rest homes. He never played in another tournament, although it is known that in 1971 he attended the U.S. Open at Merion, close by his family home in Philadelphia. Six weeks later, McDermott died.

U. S. GOLF OFFICIAL LIKES COBBS CREEK

Ganson Depew Says It's Hardest Test Public-Course Golfers Ever Have Faced

By TED HOYT

HIGH praise for the Cobbs Creek course as a test of golf is contained in a letter from Ganson Depew, chairman of the Public Links Championship Committee of the United States Golf Association to E. L. Mendell, in charge of the local arrangements for the 1928 national tournament to be held here this summer.

Mr. Depew went over the Cobbs Creek layout recently with Mr. Mendell, Alfred E. Hand, the new superintendent, and James Flaherty, greens keeper. He was much impressed and also heartily indorsed all the preliminary plans for the championship as drawn up by Mr. Mendell and the chairmen of the various committees. The locker

Cobbs Creek Golfers Seek National Public Course Crown

Ivan Crooks Will Lead Local Links Delegation on Buffalo Invasion—Springhaven Caddy Team Wins Fifth Straight Clash

By TED HOYT

PLANS have been virtually completed for the trip of the six Cobbs Creek golfers who qualified for the national public course championship at Buffalo, N. Y., next week over the Greer Cleveland Park public links.

This course was formerly owned by the Country Club of Buffalo and was only acquired by the city within the last year for the sum of $800,000. It is the finest and most complete municipal layout in the country, and visiting contenders are assured of a hearty welcome from the Buffalo golfers.

A special committee, of which Ganey Depew, a wealthy lumberman, is chairman, has made elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of the invaders. A smoker, a dance and a trip to Niagara Falls at night are on the program.

At a meeting held in the offices of Mastbaum Brothers & Fleisher yesterday afternoon Ivan Crooks, who led the qualifying field at Cobbs Creek on Monday, July 19, was appointed captain of the Philadelphia team by E. D. Mendell, a member of the Bala Golf Club and this city's representative on the municipal course Championship Committee of the United States Golf Association.

A check-up of the money raised at Cobbs Creek to finance the journey to Buffalo revealed that only about $200 more was required, and it is virtually wealthy man handed over a check for $500 and others gave from $20 to $200.

After the expenses of the Pittsburgh team have been defrayed for next week's invasion of Buffalo the balance will be placed in a trust fund and will draw interest until next season.

Another exhibition match will be held next spring and annually thereafter until $12,000 has been raised. The interest on that amount will be sufficient to send a Pittsburgh team most any place in this country short of the Pacific Coast. If the public links tourney ever should go to the Coast it should not prove difficult to raise the balance needed, that is judging by the liberality shown by the golf fans there this year.

Unless something of the same nature is done here it will be necessary to have a yearly campaign for funds and this will eventually become a great nuisance. Of course, the City Council might appropriate the necessary money, as is done by the Far Western towns, but the chances are slim that the local city fathers will come across.

Springhaven Caddies Do It Again

The Springhaven caddies won their fifth consecutive team match of the 1926 season the other day when they nosed out the Lansdowne caddies by a 5-to-4 count in spite of the fact that they did not have their strongest lineup in the field.

Jack McMunigal, Springhaven's No.

certain that this additional sum can be readily be collected.

Vanguard Leaves Friday Night

Ivan Crooks, the captain, and Charley Albertus, the former West Philadelphia High athletic star, who finished third in the qualifying round with a total of 164, will probably leave Friday night, while the other four members of the team, Leo Boyle, who was runner-up to Crooks, Jack Lord and A. E. Panotto, who were tied at 168 for fourth place, and Jackson Schultz, who had 169, will depart from the Reading Terminal around 9:45 o'clock on Saturday night.

They will reach Buffalo at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and, after registering at the Hotel Statler, which will be the headquarters of the contestants in the tourney, will have a practice round over the Cleveland Park links.

A proposal to start a permanent fund for financing the expeditions of the Philadelphia delegation to the municipal course championship was discussed at yesterday's meeting.

It seems that Pittsburgh raised $4000 last spring by staging an exhibition match between ten of the leading public links players of the Smoky City and an equal number of private clubs' stars. An admission fee was charged and an appeal was made for voluntary subscriptions. The event was most successful, as the total raised shows. One man, had a 77 in the morning and a 74 in the afternoon for a grand total of 151, which is going some over the deceptive Lansdowne course. Joe Hayes, paired with Willie Dougherty, was two down to J. Dever and P. Boyer as the foursome teed off at the fifteenth in the morning's best-ball struggle. But McMunigal shot four birdies in a row to win for Springhaven by 2 up. This listens like a record for a caddy contest.

Having cleaned up Delaware County the Springhaven lads are seeking new worlds to conquer and are trying to arrange matches with the caddy teams from other sections of the Philadelphia district.

The summary:

Buffalo Prepares for Public Course Title Tilt Next Month

Fifth Annual Championship to Be Staged Over $800,- 000 Grover Cleveland Park Municipal Links on August 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7

By TED HOYT

WITH the annual public links championship less than three weeks off, a few words concerning the arrangements for the event, the fifth to be held under the auspices of the United States Golf Association, might not be amiss. The tournament is scheduled for Grover Cleveland Park, the new $800,000 municipal course of Buffalo, N. Y., August 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. This layout is probably the finest public links in the country. It was owned for twenty-five years by the Buffalo Country Club and was remodeled in 1919 by Donald Ross.

The national open tournament of 1912 was played there and resulted in the second consecutive victory for Jack Mc Dermott, then pro at the Country Club of Atlantic City. In time the property became too valuable to be used as a private golf course, for the taxes became extremely steep.

It was first planned to sell to a real estate operator and cut the course up into building lots, but this seemed a crime to many Buffalo golfers, and the idea was finally conceived of selling the entire property to the city to be used as a public course and a memorial to former President Grover Cleveland, a popular hero in Buffalo.

The proposal was enthusiastically received and the deal was put through about a year ago. Being owned by the city, no taxes have to be paid and the upkeep is taken care of by the small play tourney for those who fail to qualify in the championship '32." It will be held on Thursday August 5, by courtesy of the Transit Valley Country Club will be a three-cornered sort of an affair. There will be a prize for the low gross score of the eighteen-hole morning round, and another prize for the low gross score of the eighteen-hole afternoon round, and still another award for the low-gross score for the thirty-six holes.

Entries Will Close July 19

Entries for the public links championship must be sent to H. H. Ramsey, secretary of the United States Golf Association, accompanied by a check or money order for $5, on or before next Monday, July 19.

The Grover Cleveland Park course is 6318 yards long, 3048 out and 3270 in, with a par of 35 for the first nine and of 36 for the homeward journey for a total of 71. It has only three par 5 holes, but two of them are close to 600 yards, while the other measures 525 in length.

There are four one-shotters, two on each nine, and all are difficult. The par 4 holes are reasonable enough as far as length is concerned, but are exceptionally well trapped.

The municipal course championship was inaugurated in 1922 mainly through the efforts of James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, who presented the green fee charged. Besides the course itself there are on the property a large and attractive clubhouse, spacious locker house, a polo field and stables and a big swimming pool.

Much Hospitality on Tap

A committee of Buffalo golfers, of which Ganson Depew, 1524 Marine Building, Buffalo, N. Y., is general chairman, has made elaborate plans to care for the comfort and pleasure of the contestants.

On Monday evening, August 2, the night before the qualifying round, there will be a smoker in the grill room of the Hotel Statler to which all the contenders are invited. On Tuesday evening, August 3, there will be a trip to Niagara Falls some twenty-two miles away, with the chance to see the falls illuminated with powerful colored electric lights.

On Wednesday evening, August 4, there will be a dance at the clubhouse in Grover Cleveland Park to which all the players are invited. And, during the entire week of the tournament, the badges handed out upon registration will be good for free admissions at three of the largest movie theatres in Buffalo, the Hippodrome, the Buffalo and Loew's.

There will be a consolation medal championship cup and is still chairman of the Public Links Committee of the U. S. G. A. The first tournament was staged at Toledo, O., and was won by Eddie Held, of St. Louis, who has since won the Trans-Mississippi and other important sectional titles.

The 1923 tilt was run off at Washington, D. C., and was won by Richard A. Walsh, of New York City. The third test was held at Dayton, O., in 1924 and was won by Joe Coble, of this city, who surprised the sharps by beating out a fine field mainly because of some miraculous putting.

Last year the public links tourney was held over one of the semipublic courses at Salisbury, Long Island, and Raymond J. McAuliffe, of Buffalo, came out on top. Coble turned pro last spring and, after spending a year as assistant to Horace Gamble at Cobbs Creek, went to Philmont to replace Lou Goldbeck as assistant to Charley Höfner. Goldbeck, it will be recalled, took Bob Grant's place as head pro at Bala.

The first competition for the President Warren G. Harding Cup, fought for by teams from the various cities having public links, was held in 1923 and was won by Chicago with a score of 311 for eighteen holes.

Cobbs Creek Golfers Seek National Public Course Crown

Ivan Crooks Will Lead Local Links Delegation on Buffalo Invasion—Springhaven Caddy Team Wins Fifth Straight Clash

By TED HOYT

PLANS have been virtually completed for the trip of the six Cobbs Creek golfers who qualified for the national public course championship at Buffalo, N. Y., next week over the Greer Cleveland Park public links.

This course was formerly owned by the Country Club of Buffalo and was only acquired by the city within the last year for the sum of $800,000. It is the finest and most complete municipal layout in the country, and visiting contenders are assured of a hearty welcome from the Buffalo golfers.

A special committee, of which Ganey Depew, a wealthy lumberman, is chairman, has made elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of the invaders. A smoker, a dance and a trip to Niagara Falls at night are on the program.

At a meeting held in the offices of Mastbaum Brothers & Fleisher yesterday afternoon Ivan Crooks, who led the qualifying field at Cobbs Creek on Monday, July 19, was appointed captain of the Philadelphia team by E. D. Mendell, a member of the Bala Golf Club and this city's representative on the municipal course Championship Committee of the United States Golf Association.

A check-up of the money raised at Cobbs Creek to finance the journey to Buffalo revealed that only about $200 more was required, and it is virtually wealthy man handed over a check for $500 and others gave from $20 to $200.

After the expenses of the Pittsburgh team have been defrayed for next week's invasion of Buffalo the balance will be placed in a trust fund and will draw interest until next season.

Another exhibition match will be held next spring and annually thereafter until $12,000 has been raised. The interest on that amount will be sufficient to send a Pittsburgh team most any place in this country short of the Pacific Coast. If the public links tourney ever should go to the Coast it should not prove difficult to raise the balance needed, that is judging by the liberality shown by the golf fans there this year.

Unless something of the same nature is done here it will be necessary to have a yearly campaign for funds and this will eventually become a great nuisance. Of course, the City Council might appropriate the necessary money, as is done by the Far Western towns, but the chances are slim that the local city fathers will come across.

Springhaven Caddies Do It Again

The Springhaven caddies won their fifth consecutive team match of the 1926 season the other day when they nosed out the Lansdowne caddies by a 5-to-4 count in spite of the fact that they did not have their strongest lineup in the field.

Four Phila. Contenders Still In Race for Public Links Title

Albertus, Boyle, Lord and Schultz Have Fine Chance to Qualify for Match-Play Rounds of National Tourney

By a Staff Correspondent

Buffalo, Aug. 4.—Four of the six Philadelphia entries had more than a fighting chance to qualify for the match play rounds of the fifth annual public course championship as they teed off today over the Grover Cleveland Park municipal links in the second and final lap of the 36-hole grind. Jack Lord, Charley Albertus and Jackson Schultz, with totals of 76 each made in the first half of the qualifying test yesterday, and Leo Boyle with a 77 have only to hold the same relative speed today and they will land among the select thirty-two who will compete for the title in the match play rounds tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

For it is estimated on the basis of yesterday's scores that a grand total of 157 will surely make the grade and that perhaps even 158 and ties will get by. A number of those who turned in low totals yesterday are hardly likely to repeat today. Its those with cards of 73 to 77 who are picked to stay in the running.

The other two Philadelphians, Ivan Crooks, captain of the team, who shot a 73 to help with the Horne Cup from Pittsburgh on Monday, and A. E. Fanshott, the "dark horse" of the Quaker City contingent, must hit a swift paceship flight.

the Warren G. Harding Trophy, now held by New York, and only a marvelous reversal of form on the part of Crooks and consistently low scoring by the other three members of the team can save the day.

Chicago accumulated quite a neat lead in this contest, thanks to a 71 by Gus Fetz, who played end on the Chicago "Bears" professional football team last fall, and to a 72 by William Wallace, another of the many "dark horses" who bobbed up during the first round.

Just how Fetz is eligible for an amateur tournament is hard to understand. In Philadelphia not so long ago the coach of a big Eastern football team was barred from an amateur competition. So how can a chap who plays football for a living be labeled a "simon pure"?

Should the Harding Cup go to Chicago because of the snappy play of Fetz it is more than likely that a protest will be lodged, so as to get an exact definition from the committee of the United States Golf Association, which is running the tourney, as to just who is and who is not eligible for the event.

Young Bill Martin, of Buffalo, who shot a 70, one under par for the course, to lead the field yesterday, is a self-taught golfer. He was not counted on to do anything sensational by the other Buffalo entries and they were amazed when they saw his score.

Breaks Go Against Crooks

Crooks had some hard luck on the short ninth where his drive was virtually buried in the side of trap and he wasted two shots getting out to wind up with a 5. That misfortune seemed to upset him completely and he played raggedly on the way home for a 44. He had three 6's, two at par four holes and no birdies were snared to restore his confidence and redeem his score. His total was 83 and only a fine round of 74 or even better will pull him out of his present plight.

Fannotto had an 81, a 42 out and a 39 in, and needs a 76 or better today to stick in fast company. Philadelphia is lagging in the struggle for

It is not considered probable that he will be able to do anywhere near as well today.

The same line of reasoning is applied to the exploits of Fetz, with his 71; J. A. Sahre, of New York, who had a 72; Wallace, of Chicago, who also had a 72, and Nicholas Donofrio, of New York, who had a 74.

The cards of 73 turned in by Lester Bolstad, the young public course champion of Minneapolis, and Dick Walsh, of New York, national municipal links titleholder in 1923, are considered about their average speed.

Consolation Tiff Tomorrow

There will be a handicap medal play joust on another course here tomorrow for those who fail to qualify today and a trip to Niagara Falls by night still remains on the entertainment program. The Buffalo committee has indeed set a new high mark in the way of looking after the visitors and everything has gone smoothly since the invaders checked in at the Hotel Statler, the official headquarters.

Cleveland, O., appears to have the public course tourney for next year neatly nailed down, but there is a chance of Philadelphia getting it in 1928, if a real effort is made to land the fixture. It is hardly likely the Fairmount Park Commissioners will consent to close the Cobb's Creek course to all other players for five days and so, unless some private club steps into the breach, it is difficult to figure out where the tilt could be held, even if awarded to the Quaker City.
