representative your household's monthly income and expenses, as well as any resources available to you. You may be offered a deferred payment agreement (DPA), which may require no down payment, or a small amount you can afford. If you are offered a DPA, this will continue your service and prevent the need to apply for emergency assistance with ECDSS.

- When you accept a deferred payment arrangement, you may be required to submit documents to the utility company to qualify and complete their process.
- If you are not offered a deferred payment arrangement, or if you cannot afford the payment amount requested, you may apply for emergency utility arrears assistance.

Utility Arrears Assistance

If you are otherwise eligible for assistance, Erie County Department of Social Services (ECDSS) may assist you with a one-time payment of utility arrears to prevent disconnection or denial of your gas or electric service.

Utility arrears payments cover a maximum of the last 4 months' bills; if your service has been off longer than 4 months, we may be unable to assist you.

Assistance may be made as an interest-free loan or as a grant. Income limits apply differently for utility arrears assistance.

- If you earn more than your household size might receive in Temporary Assistance, you may be eligible for an interest-free loan.
- If you earn less or receive SSI, you may be eligible for a grant.

Interest-free loans for utility arrears must be repaid within 24 months. Failure to repay your loan in full, or keep payments up-to-date, may result in denial of future utility arrears assistance.

Water Assistance

If you are otherwise eligible for assistance, Erie County Department of Social Services (ECDSS) may assist you with a one-time payment of your current water bill charges, if you have a water account in your name, have fallen behind on making payments, and have received a shut-off notice from the water company.

If your service has been off longer than 3 months, we may be unable to assist you.
